We believe that it is the basic human right to be part of one's own society, to reflect, and instigate change.

What?

The Institute for Social Sciences and Humanities (Iran Academia), established in 2012, is the first online Persian-language educational institution evaluated and accredited by the European Qualification Framework to grant master's level degrees to Persian-speaking students who lack access to higher education. ISSH benefits from the presence of eminent professors from around the world who teach or have taught at prestigious universities in North America and Europe.

In August 2022,
we will celebrate Iran Academia's tenth anniversary

Why?

Iran Academia started in 2012 due to violations of the Right to Education, academic freedom, and lack of University autonomy in Social Sciences in Iran. The institution is based in The Netherlands and connects its faculty and staff across an extensive global network with a mission to encourage critical thinking and build capacity for Iran's youth by increasing access to uncensored knowledge.

What is ICCI?

The Second “International Conference on Contemporary Iranian Studies”

Coinciding with the tenth anniversary of its educational activities, Iran Academia, in collaboration with the International Institute of Social Studies, organizes The Second International Conference on Contemporary Iranian Studies about “Iran and the Turn of the Century; Experiences, Lessons, and Perspectives”.

According to the official Iranian calendar, the year 1400 (2021-22) is the end of the fourteenth solar century and the start of a new century. Over the past century, Iran has witnessed numerous major transitions and changes. Fifteen years before the beginning of the fourteenth century, the Constitutional Revolution opened a new political horizon for Iranian politics as the country was waking up from its medieval slumber. Despite this critical historical event, the fourteenth century in Iran witnessed deep political crises, challenges, and tensions that continued through the rest of the century.
